

A Taste of P4C

A Taste of P4C is your opportunity to experience this innovative educational approach in preparation for joining our four day seminar in July 2017.

Meet Dr. Jen Glaser & hear from local educators using P4C in their classrooms and schools

P4C's four day seminar will take place in July from July 17—20, with an extra day (July 21) for directors & supervisors

Marion Gribetz, the director of educational initiatives at Hebrew College, will be available to discuss details of the seminar and generous scholarship opportunities

Dr. Glaser is founder and co-director of the Israel Centre for Philosophy in Education - "Philosophy for Life" (ICPE). She leads a number of educational projects and is a consultant to schools, higher education institutions and community organizations in Israel and abroad. Dr. Glaser's innovative work in bringing P4C to Jewish Schools throughout North America is funded through a generous Covenant Foundation Grant, along with funding from partner communities.

PHILOSOPHY FOR CHILDREN

Philosophy for Children is a student-centered approach that engages children in philosophizing (doing philosophy) on important questions such as:

- What is goodness?
- What kind of life is worth living?
- Are there different kinds of truth?

This approach, applied to Jewish education, helps children search for meaning, build identity, and develop a world view.
