

Building Communities of inquiry in Jewish Education

PHILOSOPHICAL INQUIRY is a special kind of inquiry based learning.
Our workshop explores what philosophy can offer students of all ages.

June 20-23, 2016, Hebrew College

A Workshop for Teachers & Jewish Educators
in Day schools and Synagogues

Presented by Dr. Jen Glaser
Director of Engaging Texts Network

Philosophical Inquiry in Jewish education combines rigorous exploration of meaning with community building and rich, deep Jewish content knowledge.

THIS FOUR-DAY SEMINAR WILL:

- ✓ Induct you into the Philosophy for Children approach in Education
- ✓ Introduce you to the pedagogical methodology of building Communities of Inquiry
- ✓ Prepare you to implement this approach in their own classrooms and Jewish educational contexts (Day and Synagogue Schools)
- ✓ Introduce you to a variety of curriculum materials that integrate the philosophical inquiry with curricula designed for primary middle & high schools
- ✓ Stimulate and expand your experience of Jewish text and the process of interpretation

**Educators participating in this seminar will have the opportunity to be part of a national community of practice with continued support from Dr. Glaser. www.engagingtexts.com

REGISTRATION INFORMATION

Cost: $300 plus $50 for extensive materials. Sessions are 9:00 am-4:30 pm

The $350 fee includes kosher lunches and materials. Commitment to all four days from 9:00 to 4:30 is necessary.

Limited number of scholarships available. For information contact: Rabbi Alvan Kaunfer at akaunfer@hebrewcollege.org. Register at <http://hebrewcollege.edu/form/philosophyineducation>